Quake in Turkey Kills 3,000

Fayette Crash Is Fatal to 5

WASHINGTON COURT HOUSE, Ohio (AP)—A Cincinnati couple and their three daughters, returning home from a church meeting early today, were killed in a fiery three-vehicle crash on Interstate 71 west of here in Fayette County.

Four other persons, including two from the same family, were injured when a tractor-trailer rig slammed into the rear of the family's auto which was being towed on the superhighway by a wrecker.

A trucker who witnessed the collision said the car was weaving from side to side on the highway behind the wrecker. When the truck hit it, he said, the smaller vehicle "went straight up in the air and burst into flames."

One of the victims was thrown out, the other four were rapped in the flaming wreckage. Killed: James Price, 41; his wife, Minnie, 38; and three daughters, Jeri, 17; Benita, 14, and Angela, 11.

All lived at 2528 Glenview Avenue, Cincinnati.

A 16-year-old son, Michael Price, and a cousin, Mac Wright, 16, who apparently lived with the family, were riding in the wrecker and suffered abrasions along with the driver of the vehicle, Charles West, 19, of Washington Court House.

Michael also was suffering from shock at Fayette Memorial Hospital.

The three were pinned in the wrecker for a time after the accident.

The tractor-trailer also caught fire and burned after the accident. Its driver, Melvin H. Duncan, Jr., 28, of Cathey, Ga., was able to escape with only minor injuries. He was treated at the hospital and released.

Fire companies from here and Jeffersonville, near the accident scene, were summoned to douse the blaze as traffic on the southbound lane waited for more than an hour.

The truck's cargo of cabbage was strewn over a wide area and the accident scene, 2.9 miles south of the Interstate 71-U.S. 35 interchange, was dotted with Bibles the Price family had with them.

Michael was able to tell Ohio Highway Patrolmen and sheriff's deputies, who investigated, that the family had been at a church meeting. But authorities did not learn where.

All five of the victims were dead at the scene. Four of the bodies still were in the car three hours after the accident.

Workmen had to wait until it cooled before they would cut off the top of the 1957 model car to remove them. Mrs. Price was thrown into the middle of the freeway upon impact of the collision.

LBJ Deplores Racial Strife

President Fears All Gains Lost

KINGSTON, R.I. (AP)—President Johnson, strapping across New England in campaign style, said today achievement of full rights and opportunities for Negroes "will avail us nothing if our society is torn by violence and discord."

"We are, after all, one nation," Johnson said, "It is our destiny to succeed or fail as a single people — not as separate races."

The President turned to civil rights and racial rioting as he began the second day of his five-state tour with an address at a convocation at the University of Rhode Island.

"The Molotov cocktail destroys far more than the police car or pawn shop," he said in a prepared speech. "It destroys the basis for civil peace and social progress."

"The poor suffer twice at the rioter's hands: first, when his destructive fury scars their neighborhoods; second, when the atmosphere of accommodation and consent is changed to one of hostility and resentment."

At the university ceremonies, where he was to receive an honorary doctor of law degree, Johnson said the American Negro "has made great gains in the past decade behind the banner of peaceful protest."

He added: "The fury of bigots and bullies to these gains has only served to strengthen the will of our people that justice be done. The vivid contrast between lawful assemblies and lawless mobs has spurred our conscience. We have begun to act — at last — to open real opportunities for the American Negro, and to help him to achieve them."

"We shall continue, multiplying and enlarging our efforts. Yet they can succeed only in conditions of civil peace. And civil peace can exist only when all men, Negro and white alike, are as dedicated to satisfying their responsibilities as they are to securing their rights."

"For we are, after all, one nation. It is our destiny to succeed or fail as a single people — not as separate races."

Court Limits Size of Rights Demonstrations

Chicago Action Is Opposed by Dr. Luther King

CHICAGO (AP)—Civil rights leaders are under a court order restricting the scope of open housing demonstrations, which have been marked by violence in all-white neighborhoods, but Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. said marches "probably will be resumed Sunday as planned."

"We are prepared to put thousands in the street if need be," he said.

Circuit Judge Cornelius J. Harrington issued the temporary restraining order Friday at the request of the city of Chicago and Police Supt. Orlando W. Wilson.

His order limits the number of demonstrators to 500, permits only one march a day, only during non-rush hour daylight periods and requires that police be given 24 hours advance notice of any demonstration.

The city's complaint, filed at the direction of Mayor Richard J. Daley, accused civil rights leaders of carrying out a plan of "creative tension." It said that "major civil disturbances erupted" in June and July "resulting in damages in excess of several million dollars to private property, the death of 27 persons and injury to 374 persons, including 61 police officers."

The reference to 27 deaths apparently covered all killings attributed to racial tensions in the city. No violent deaths have been reported during the marches into white neighborhoods in support of open housing. Two persons were shot and killed during riots on the West Side in mid-July.

King, who said earlier that "Sunday will be a big day in the city of Chicago" called the injunction action "unjust, illegal and unconstitutional."

King, chairman of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, said: "We don't consider this injunction a setback. This will only mobilize us more and unify us."

King arranged to confer with attorneys, his staff members and leaders of other civil rights groups. There was no immediate indication whether they would violate the restraining order's restrictions.

King told his followers earlier, "When I think law is wrong, I'm willing to go to jail and stay there. I have been in jail in Florida, Mississippi, and Georgia and I'm willing to go to jail in Chicago."

Cincy Health Center To Be Major Affair

CINCINNATI (AP)—The proposed Public Health Service environmental health center at Cincinnati will be a major facility with hundreds of employees, the U. S. surgeon general says.

Dr. William H. Stewart told a news conference Friday the center near the University of Cincinnati campus may cost considerably more than the original estimate of $20 to $25 million. He also said he expects the number of PHS employees in Cincinnati almost double from the present 800.

Most of the PHS employees now work at the Taft Sanitary Engineering Center which does research in environmental health problems. Dr. Stewart said the new center will concentrate on disease prevention and environmental control.

The surgeon general visited Cincinnati together with a subcommittee of the House Committee on Health, Education and Welfare.

County Home Area Favored As Airport Site

Location of a proposed Pickaway County Airport has been narrowed down to one site.

According to the Pickaway County Board of Commissioners, the most favorable site at the moment appears to be land owned by the county at the old County Home on Route 22. The property, along with a tract under private ownership, would provide sufficient area for an airstrip.

This was the reflection cast Friday when the commissioners, two members of the local Airport Advisory Committee and officials from the Ohio Division of Aviation inspected possible sites. All concerned leaned strongly to the County Home area after several other locations under consideration were ruled out.

One of the sites deemed unfeasible was a tract about four miles south of Circleville, located between Route 23 and the C & O Railroad and generally bounded on the north by an auto parts yard and Radcliff Road on the south. Two other areas south of the city also failed to receive favorable nods.

ACCORDING to the state officials, the land between the highway and the railroad presented too many obstacles in the way of congested rail and road traffic. Other factors considered were the location of three industries in the vicinity and the tract's narrow confines which would prevent erection of an airstrip that would face prevailing winds from the southwest.

Land at the now-closed County Home would offer about 2,800 feet of frontage for airport purposes. The need of an addition-

Teacher Corps Still Lacks Funds

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Jacob K. Javits has told a group of Teacher Corps trainees he will seek approval of funds to continue the program for which no appropriations have been voted for this year.

Nineteen trainees from Ohio University, Athens, visited Capitol Hill and spend the day trying to talk with senators.

Despite the promise from Javits, a New York Republican one of the trainees said "we haven't had too much success."

If Congress fails to appropriate funds for the Teachers Corps, many of the 1,600 trainees face a jobless school year.

Legislation To Curb Antiwar Groups Coming

WASHINGTON (AP)—Legislation designed to curb the activities of anti-Viet Nam war groups appear headed for overwhelming House approval on the heels of this week's tumultuous hearings by the Committee on Un-American Activities.

"I think Congress is very receptive to this legislation," said Rep. Joe R. Pool, D-Tex., acting committee chairman.

Other members agreed that the defiant committee-baiting by antiwar witnesses and admission by several witnesses that they are communists will help speed the legislation to early House passage.

Pool said he would seek committee approval next week of a bill he introduced to authorize maximum $20,000 fines and 20-year jail terms for persons convicted of helping the Viet Cong or North Vietnamese or of trying to block the movement of

According to Lloyd Melvin, commission chairman, both the Cromans indicated they would not be opposed to selling their land for airport purposes.

Although the commissioners were encouraged with Friday's site inspection results, they noted that several problems still weigh heavy. The foremost is finding a method to finance purchase of the Croman land if and when an eventual purchase agreement is reached.

Another problem involving the County Home site would be the required closing of a section of the East Ringgold-Southern Road. But Melvin pointed out that the road could be

British Rule May Ruin U.S. Rancher

LONDON (AP)—A rancher from Stockton, Calif., says he faces financial ruin because the British government won't let him land 30 prize horses now aboard a ship about to go into dry dock.

"It's a hopeless muddle, I stand to lose every cent I've got," Gregory Lougher, 50, told newsmen today.

He said he had mortgaged his ranch. He and his wife planned to settle in Australia, bringing the horses along to breed foals for cattle and sheep stations.

First the animals must be quarantined in Britain for six months, as required by Australian regulations. Lougher knew this, made sure they had the proper injections and made all the necessary arrangements.

But the British Ministry of Agriculture says the horses, worth more than $50,000, may not land because the ship docked for one night at the French port of La Havre. An outbreak in France of swine fever which is carried by flies prompted the British to ban all horse imports from France last May.

Man Sells Property, But Keeps His Topsoil

DEMING, N.M. (AP)—The tomato plants in Wendell Hoover's garden brought considerable local fame to Hoover.

Hoover, knowing the value of topsoil for his plants, reported Friday he had removed the necessary topsoil from his old property to his new home — in 180 trips by car.

Disaster Area Has Yielded 1,000 Bodies

Dozens of Towns Wiped Out; U.S. Sends Medical Aid

ANKARA, Turkey (AP)—Rescue workers today counted nearly 1,000 bodies of victims from the catastrophic earthquake that ripped across eastern Turkey Friday and officials said the toll probably will go far beyond 3,000.

The number of known and estimated dead rose by the hour as army and civilian rescue teams fought through the rugged, mountainous back country of the quake-stricken area to reach destroyed villages and towns.

Officials reported many thousands injured.

The full fury of the quake Friday afternoon hit the town of Varto, a community of 3,000 inhabitants. "It can be said that nothing remained of Varto," a Turkish Army officer reported from the scene.

The Turkish Interior Ministry earlier had expressed belief the quake, which leveled dozens of other villages, might have taken 1,500 lives.

Civilian officials at Varto said 816 bodies had been recovered in that area alone and they estimated that at least 3,000 persons had perished in the surrounding desert of rubble left by the killer quake.

They said scores of villages around Varto had been wiped out.

A Turkish radio report said many inhabitants were buried under the wreckage, including some pupils at the Varto school, who could be faintly heard crying for help.

The quake struck mountain villages in four provinces near the Iranian frontier, about 650 miles east of Istanbul.

The governor of Erzurum Province reported in a radio broadcast from Ali Akarsu Friday night that all dwellings were leveled in 24 villages in the

HHH To Appear In Capital Parade

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The national AMVETS convention took a break from its business sessions today for a parade that was to feature Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey and the organization's newly crowned beauty queen.

Humphrey also scheduled a news conference as part of his brief Columbus visit. The national commander of the veterans' organization, Ralph E. Hall, said Humphrey would discuss draft laws and answer his questions on several topics.

Friday night, 20-year-old May Aikman of Sheldon, Ill., won the right to ride in the parade as Miss AMVETS U.S.A. as she won the title in a contest with eight other national finalists.

Arkansas Prison Whipping Practice Is under Fire

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP)—Arkansas' controversy over whipping of convicts, dormant for six months, has flared again with a prisoner's hand-written charge that he was strapped for not picking a crop he couldn't see.

William King Jackson, 27, a

Gresham, S.C., man sentenced in 1963 to five years in the state penitentiary for burglary, filed a neatly printed, six-page petition in U.S. District Court Friday.

He charged that he was whipped with the five-foot leather strap for overlooking — because of his poor vision — "okra in the field."

Last November, a U.S. district judge, acting on convict petitions, ruled that use of the whip constituted cruel and unusual punishment as prohibited by the Constitution unless the penitentiary board established explicit rules for its use. The board adopted a set of rules Feb. 2, but they have not been tested in court.

As a result of the first controversy, warden Dan Stephens resigned. He was succeeded by O. E. Bishop.

Prison officials contend the whip is an effective way to maintain discipline. Opponents argue that solitary confinement would work as well. The officials say they don't have facilities for solitary confinement.

Under the new rules, a man may be whipped for not meeting his quota in the fields, but the decision must be made by a two-man prison board, not by the field supervisor. Quotas are based on a man's age and physical condition.

The penitentiary operates entirely on revenue from its vast farmland.

Jackson said in the petition that he was charged July 29 with overlooking okra and "brought to trial." He said he told a warden that his eyesight was bad and that the prison doctor had given him medicine for his eyes and instructed that he be furnished with eyeglasses. He got the whipping anyway, Jackson's petition said.

Airline Strike Ends, Planes Start Winging

WASHINGTON (AP)—Jet planes of five major airlines prepared to wing skyward today after machinists ended a six-week strike that profoundly shook the administration's economic policy and gave Congress its biggest political scare in years.

"The strike is now over," said President P. L. (Roy) Siemiller of the AFL-CIO International Association of Machinists after militant union members voted 17,727 to 8,235 to accept a lucrative new contract and end the worst airlines walkout in U.S. history.

Shortly after the vote was announced, spokesmen for the five airlines — Eastern, United, Northwest, National and Trans World — said some flights would be taking off early today.

The contract approval sending 35,400 strikers back to work permits Congress to drop politically explosive legislation that would have ordered strikers back to their jobs for the first time in U.S. history. Organized labor had lined up solidly in opposition to the legislation.

But it shatters White House guidelines designed to limit wage hikes to 3.2 per cent a year and sets a precedent for other unions to cite in pressing for fatter paychecks.

Estimated at a 6 per cent or more annual increase, the new contract gives 15 per cent in wage hikes over three years plus a cost-of-living guarantee against sharply rising prices worth up to 6 cents more per hour in the final year of the agreement in 1968. This means top-rated mechanics, who have been receiving $3.25 an hour, will be paid at least $4.08 an hour within three years.

Siemiller already was looking to the future.

"It is just like a prize fight," he said. "This round is over, but there will be another one in 2 years and 4 months," referring to the contract's expiration date. Fully paid pensions and better health benefits and vacations will be prime goals next time, Siemiller said.

In an early indication to the effect of the hefty contract, the AFL-CIO Communications Workers of America said in taking a nationwide strike vote among Western Electric Co. telephone installers that it was shooting for a similar agreement designed to shatter the administration's anti-inflation wage guidelines.

Siemiller said "we claim no credit for shattering anything," but his union earlier boasted the airlines settlement "shreds" the lines.

The five airlines lost estimated revenues of $340 million during the strike, although it was not certain how much of this would be recouped through pact under which other big airlines that remained operating share windfall profits with four of the grounded carriers.

The strikers and furloughed employees of the five airlines lost an estimated $67 million in wages, some of it covered by $25 weekly strike benefits and temporary jobs elsewhere.

"It's a hopeless muddle, I stand to lose every cent I've got," Gregory Lougher, 50, told newsmen today.

He said he had mortgaged his ranch. He and his wife planned to settle in Australia, bringing the horses along to breed foals for cattle and sheep stations.

First the animals must be quarantined in Britain for six months, as required by Australian regulations. Lougher knew this, made sure they had the proper injections and made all the necessary arrangements.

But the British Ministry of Agriculture says the horses, worth more than $50,000, may not land because the ship docked for one night at the French port of La Havre. An outbreak in France of swine fever which is carried by flies prompted the British to ban all horse imports from France last May.

Teacher Corps Still Lacks Funds

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Jacob K. Javits has told a group of Teacher Corps trainees he will seek approval of funds to continue the program for which no appropriations have been voted for this year.

Nineteen trainees from Ohio University, Athens, visited Capitol Hill and spend the day trying to talk with senators.

Despite the promise from Javits, a New York Republican one of the trainees said "we haven't had too much success."

If Congress fails to appropriate funds for the Teachers Corps, many of the 1,600 trainees face a jobless school year.

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—Militant Buddhist Leader Tri Quang, now in the 74th day of his antigovernment fast, today was reported tired, but determined to continue. His doctor says he has been taking only liquids since June 8.

Legislation To Curb Antiwar Groups Coming

WASHINGTON (AP)—Legislation designed to curb the activities of anti-Viet Nam war groups appear headed for overwhelming House approval on the heels of this week's tumultuous hearings by the Committee on Un-American Activities.

"I think Congress is very receptive to this legislation," said Rep. Joe R. Pool, D-Tex., acting committee chairman.

Other members agreed that the defiant committee-baiting by antiwar witnesses and admission by several witnesses that they are communists will help speed the legislation to early House passage.

Pool said he would seek committee approval next week of a bill he introduced to authorize maximum $20,000 fines and 20-year jail terms for persons convicted of helping the Viet Cong or North Vietnamese or of trying to block the movement of

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The national AMVETS convention took a break from its business sessions today for a parade that was to feature Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey and the organization's newly crowned beauty queen.

Humphrey also scheduled a news conference as part of his brief Columbus visit. The national commander of the veterans' organization, Ralph E. Hall, said Humphrey would discuss draft laws and answer his questions on several topics.

Friday night, 20-year-old May Aikman of Sheldon, Ill., won the right to ride in the parade as Miss AMVETS U.S.A. as she won the title in a contest with eight other national finalists.

Airline Strike Ends, Planes Start Winging

WASHINGTON (AP)—Jet planes of five major airlines prepared to wing skyward today after machinists ended a six-week strike that profoundly shook the administration's economic policy and gave Congress its biggest political scare in years.

"The strike is now over," said President P. L. (Roy) Siemiller of the AFL-CIO International Association of Machinists after militant union members voted 17,727 to 8,235 to accept a lucrative new contract and end the worst airlines walkout in U.S. history.

Shortly after the vote was announced, spokesmen for the five airlines — Eastern, United, Northwest, National and Trans World — said some flights would be taking off early today.

The contract approval sending 35,400 strikers back to work permits Congress to drop politically explosive legislation that would have ordered strikers back to their jobs for the first time in U.S. history. Organized labor had lined up solidly in opposition to the legislation.

But it shatters White House guidelines designed to limit wage hikes to 3.2 per cent a year and sets a precedent for other unions to cite in pressing for fatter paychecks.

Estimated at a 6 per cent or more annual increase, the new contract gives 15 per cent in wage hikes over three years plus a cost-of-living guarantee against sharply rising prices worth up to 6 cents more per hour in the final year of the agreement in 1968. This means top-rated mechanics, who have been receiving $3.25 an hour, will be paid at least $4.08 an hour within three years.

Siemiller already was looking to the future.

"It is just like a prize fight," he said. "This round is over, but there will be another one in 2 years and 4 months," referring to the contract's expiration date. Fully paid pensions and better health benefits and vacations will be prime goals next time, Siemiller said.

In an early indication to the effect of the hefty contract, the AFL-CIO Communications Workers of America said in taking a nationwide strike vote among Western Electric Co. telephone installers that it was shooting for a similar agreement designed to shatter the administration's anti-inflation wage guidelines.

Siemiller said "we claim no credit for shattering anything," but his union earlier boasted the airlines settlement "shreds" the lines.

The five airlines lost estimated revenues of $340 million during the strike, although it was not certain how much of this would be recouped through pact under which other big airlines that remained operating share windfall profits with four of the grounded carriers.

The strikers and furloughed employees of the five airlines lost an estimated $67 million in wages, some of it covered by $25 weekly strike benefits and temporary jobs elsewhere.

County Extension Agent, 4-H

Just a week ago I was on my way home from the National 4-H Center in Chevy Chase, Md., 10 miles from the nation's capitol building in Washington D.C. where our Federal government makes many decisions affecting you and I . . . young and old.

I was the adult leader for 40 4-H Club members who were attending the Citizenship Short-course, a weeks study of American citizenship. This is accomplished through field trips to various places such as Lincoln and Jefferson Memorial, Iwojima, Arlington Cemetery, Washington Cathedral, Washington Monument, the Capitol building, Senate, House of Representatives, Smithsonian Institute, United States Department of State and Department of Agriculture to name a few.

Before and after each trip there were speakers and group discussions of the meaning of the places and people visited. The discussions also included the relationship of these places to every American.

One of the most meaningful parts of the shortcourse was the visit with Senator Lausche followed by the observation of the senate in session. Each 4-H member learned exactly how their committee hearings takes place. They learned to better understand and appreciate the function of our national government and have a closer feeling towards it.

In addition to the field, classes were held at the 4-H center on such subjects as citizenship is our responsibility, human relations and public affairs, America's challenge to excellence, formation of U. S. policy, freedom with responsibility, applying what we have learned, and up dating our American heritage.

4-H members from Ohio, Missouri, Michigan, Iowa, Kentucky, and Virginia were represented at the Shortcourse. This experience certainly provided the opportunity for young people to deepen their commitment to the democratic way of life.

This week Linda Vance and Jim Garrett from Pickaway County are attending the Short-course. One of the responsibilities they have when they come home is to share with others the ideas they have gained.

Groups interested in having a program on this may contact the Extension.

A song opened the meeting. Karen Thompson offered prayer and Karen Peters lead the scripture. The pledges were led by Jessie Butt. Roll call was answered by members naming their favorite television program.

Members discussed a family picnic which is to be held Aug. 28 at Gold Cliff Park. They also decided on a bicycle ride to the home of Mrs. Birch, a club leader.

Mrs. Lockard informed members that the 4-H barbeque will be Oct. 1.

At the previous meeting at Sue Custer's home, Sheriff Dwight Radcliff was introduced. He showed films on highway safety.

The next meeting will be Aug. 26 at the home of Mrs. Birch.

A tour was conducted at the Lockborne Air Force Base Stables with Mr. and Mrs. Ray Hovis and Gail as hosts. A carry-pic picnic was enjoyed by all. The club held its 11th meeting at the Ashville Community shelter house with all members present. Final arrangements were made concerning the transportation of the animals to the fair. It was reported that the club had five members to attend 4-H camp, two of these acted as counselors, one participated in the county Jr. Safety Speaking contest, who placed second, and one who was runner-up in the 4-H he-lth contest. Guest at the meeting were Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wilkin, Mr. Ray Hovis, Mr. and Mrs. Wymie Perrill and son and Mr. Paul Ervin.

Advisers Chet Gloyd, Charles McCray and Carl Musgrave wish to thank all members and parents who helped in the set-up and clean-up of the County Fair. Their cooperation helped to make the fair a successful event. The next meeting will be at 8 p. m. Sept. 12 at Walnut School. A special program is planned.

Hot Weather Can Cause Leaf Scorch

Irregular bronzed areas on shade tree leaves may be a clue that hot dry weather and wind are causing leaf scorch, says Dr. Robert E. Partya, Extension plant pathologist at The Ohio State University.

Leaves usually turn brown from the outside edge of the leaf going inward, he says. Small angular brownish specks often appear in this area before the whole leaf dies. Eventually, all affected leaves become dry and turn brown.

The leaves discolor because the trees don't get enough water. This can happen even when rainfall is plentiful if the root system is diseased or damaged.

Underground sewer and gas line leaks as well as soil compacted by heavy equipment are among many causes for damaged roots. Also clearance of a wooded area for housing can mean poor soil drainage or an upset in the ground water supply — and a water shortage for trees.

Effective scorch control may be difficult, Dr. Partya says. Improving water supply in and around the tree will help if the roots are not dead. Fertilizing with a complete fertilizer high in potash also may help. If permanent root damage has occurred, prune the top branches to set a better balance between tops and roots. Remove girdling roots.

Unfortunately, once serious damage has taken place, the tree probably will die in about a year, the specialist says.

A TICK'S ability to live as long as a month on one breath of air, to go three years without food and to produce big, constant population levels through overlapping generations make it a difficult pest to control.

TWO KINDS of ticks, the American dog tick and the brown dog tick, make up the great majority of Ohio ticks in and around homes, according to Ohio State University Extension specialists.

AN OHIO STATE University Cooperative Extension specialist warns that thorough and repeated applications of insecticide are needed to assure tick eradication.

THRIPS seldom cause economic loss in corn but will occasionally feed on small corn plants growing under poor conditions, according to Ohio State University Extension entomologists.

LOW SOIL moisture at tasseling time can mean severe economic loss caused by corn leaf aphids.

COMMERCIAL vegetable growers should watch for aphids on potatoes and other vegetables, corn earworm on sweet corn, and Mexican bean beetle on Lima and green beans.

Farm Managers Should Possess Business Ability

Management of a modern Ohio farm is a complex business, says John E. Moore, Ohio State University Extension economist in farm management.

It often involves an investment as large or larger than the average business on Main Street. It also can involve more risks, because of uncertainties of weather or disease and insect damage.

Moore believes the successful farmer of tomorrow will be deeply concerned with improved business techniques, such as complete farm records, a farm business center with necessary equipment and a record analysis procedure.

Record analysis often will involve a farmer's taking advantage of computer services and, in some cases, linear programming for detailed budgeting problems, Moore says.

THE FARMER also will be interested in further training in tax management, hand budgeting, and farm planning methods, including annual cash flow budgeting.

Inadequate resources or improper use of those available hold back many a farm business enterprise, Moore says. On some farms, resources are too limited to provide satisfactory business even under good management.

On others, operators are not aware of their business potentials or have not taken full advantage of their opportunities to intensify the use of their land, available labor, and machinery. Some have made wrong choices of enterprises or they have excessive overhead due to wrong decisions when buying.

Business and home environment also influence farming operations, Moore notes. Family relationships, health problems, debt load, legal difficulties and complications of a personal nature can slow a farm family's economic progress.

Limited technical knowledge often restricts a farmer preventing him from applying the most up-to-date scientific practices to his own operation. A combination of scientific and business know-how is essential if a farmer is to make wise decisions, Moore says. Most of these decisions must be made on an individual basis, he points out, since conditions vary from farm to farm.

For example, blanket recommendations cannot be used to answer such common questions as: "Will it pay to own a combine?" "How large a sow herd should I have?" "Should I buy the 80-acre farm in my neighborhood or rent a 120 acre farm?"

FARM management meetings sponsored by the Ohio Cooperative Extension Service are providing scores of Ohio farmers with information which helps them to decide such questions on their own.

Farm management meetings at the county or area level now are being planned for next winter. Moore suggests farmers who are interested contact their county Extension offices for details about meetings in their area.

Many Areas Have Adopted Zoning Laws

More than one-fourth of Ohio's townships now have rural zoning, according to Dr. John B. Mitchell, Ohio State University Extension rural sociologist.

All or parts of 461 townships in 58 counties had approved rural zoning resolutions by the end of last year, Dr. Mitchell reports. This fall rural residents in several other communities in Ohio will vote on rural zoning proposals.

Although rural zoning has been approved in one of every four townships or parts of townships, people still have many questions about it, Dr. Mitchell says.

"It is not unusual to find facts, half-truths, and rumors mixed up in some of the discussions of this subject," the rural sociologist says. The main objectives of rural zoning are most efficient use of land, protection of property values, promotion of public health and orderly development of the community.

"Zoning is a tool local people can use in guiding future development of their area," Dr. Mitchell says. "A zoning plan classifies land into broad types of uses such as agricultural, residential, business, commercial, and industrial."

The major responsibility of rural zoning rests with rural residents. The law specifies that they are responsible for the preparation of resolutions. Only rural people can vote on the resolutions. Also five members of a board of appeals must live in the unincorporated territory covered by the zoning. Residents of incorporated villages do not vote on rural zoning.

eligible members who would not then otherwise vote in the referendum.

The agreement requires approval by at least two-thirds of the total number of producers voting or by producers having at least two-thirds of the total volume of production represented by votes in the referendum.

If the agreement is not approved by producers, no deductions will be withheld from payments on 1966 marketings, and the ASPC programs will be continued as long as the present reserve fund permits or until such time as some other agreement may be approved by producers.

In the last such referendum, held in 1962, the program was approved by 87.6 per cent of the producers voting. They owned 91 per cent of the sheep represented in the voting.

Silage Fermentation Causes Release of Dangerous Gases

Carbon dioxide and nitrogen dioxide, both dangerous when found in sufficient quantity, can be present during and after a silo is being filled, says W. E. Stuckey, Ohio State University Extension safety leader.

The gases form by bacterial action on forage crops during the first few days of storage. They can remain in the silo for more than two weeks, Stuckey warns.

Carbon dioxide is colorless, odorless, tasteless, and heavier than air. The gas can accumulate in the pocket above the level of silage and can suffocate a person.

Nitrogen dioxide results when excess nitrate builds up in corn usually resulting from drought, disease or hailstorm damage.

THE GASES are brown, yellow and orange. If enough gas is inhaled, it can cause severe lung damage and result in permanent injury or death, Stuckey warns.

Stuckey suggests these steps to avoid injury:

When filling the silo, keep doors open as near to the level of silage as possible. Gases can accumulate in the pocket above the silage if the doors are closed.

Run the blower at least 10-15 minutes before entering the silo. Ventilate the silo area by opening roof and side doors during and after the filling period. The gases are heavier than air and may accumulate around the base of the silo. Keep children and livestock away from the area.

Test for carbon dioxide by lowering a lighted lantern into the silo. If the lantern goes out, do not enter the silo — not enough oxygen is in that area. Don't go in the silo if you have burning or choking sensations in the throat.

Wool Producers Will Vote On Market Promotion Plan

The referendum on wool and lamb producers coming up in September is to determine approval or disapproval of a new agreement to continue financing an advertising and marketing development program.

The program would be financed through withholding a part of producer's wool payments on 1966-69 marketings, according to Galen D. Mowery chairman of the local Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee.

He emphasized that the outcome of the referendum will not affect continuation of the wool payment program, which was extended for three years under legislation enacted last year.

According to the chairman, the advertising, promotional and related market development activities to enlarge or improve the market for wool and lamb are carried out under terms of an agreement between the Secretary of Agriculture and the American Sheep Producers Council, Inc. (ASPC), as authorized by law.

The proposed new agreement is similar to the last one. By approving it, producers would

Many Areas Have Adopted Zoning Laws

More than one-fourth of Ohio's townships now have rural zoning, according to Dr. John B. Mitchell, Ohio State University Extension rural sociologist.

All or parts of 461 townships in 58 counties had approved rural zoning resolutions by the end of last year, Dr. Mitchell reports. This fall rural residents in several other communities in Ohio will vote on rural zoning proposals.

Although rural zoning has been approved in one of every four townships or parts of townships, people still have many questions about it, Dr. Mitchell says.

"It is not unusual to find facts, half-truths, and rumors mixed up in some of the discussions of this subject," the rural sociologist says. The main objectives of rural zoning are most efficient use of land, protection of property values, promotion of public health and orderly development of the community.

"Zoning is a tool local people can use in guiding future development of their area," Dr. Mitchell says. "A zoning plan classified land into broad types of uses such as agricultural, residential, business, commercial, and industrial."

The major responsibility of rural zoning rests with rural residents. The law specifies that they are responsible for the preparation of resolutions. Only rural people can vote on the resolutions. Also five members of a board of appeals must live in the unincorporated territory covered by the zoning. Residents of incorporated villages do not vote on rural zoning.

eligible members who would not then otherwise vote in the referendum.

The agreement requires approval by at least two-thirds of the total number of producers voting or by producers having at least two-thirds of the total volume of production represented by votes in the referendum.

If the agreement is not approved by producers, no deductions will be withheld from payments on 1966 marketings, and the ASPC programs will be continued as long as the present reserve fund permits or until such time as some other agreement may be approved by producers.

In the last such referendum, held in 1962, the program was approved by 87.6 per cent of the producers voting. They owned 91 per cent of the sheep represented in the voting.

Silage Fermentation Causes Release of Dangerous Gases

Carbon dioxide and nitrogen dioxide, both dangerous when found in sufficient quantity, can be present during and after a silo is being filled, says W. E. Stuckey, Ohio State University Extension safety leader.

The gases form by bacterial action on forage crops during the first few days of storage. They can remain in the silo for more than two weeks, Stuckey warns.

Carbon dioxide is colorless, odorless, tasteless, and heavier than air. The gas can accumulate in the pocket above the level of silage and can suffocate a person.

Nitrogen dioxide results when excess nitrate builds up in corn usually resulting from drought, disease or hailstorm damage.

THE GASES are brown, yellow and orange. If enough gas is inhaled, it can cause severe lung damage and result in permanent injury or death, Stuckey warns.

Stuckey suggests these steps to avoid injury:

When filling the silo, keep doors open as near to the level of silage as possible. Gases can accumulate in the pocket above the silage if the doors are closed.

Run the blower at least 10-15 minutes before entering the silo. Ventilate the silo area by opening roof and side doors during and after the filling period. The gases are heavier than air and may accumulate around the base of the silo. Keep children and livestock away from the area.

Test for carbon dioxide by lowering a lighted lantern into the silo. If the lantern goes out, do not enter the silo — not enough oxygen is in that area. Don't go in the silo if the gases can be seen or if you have burning or choking sensations in the throat.

If exposed to the gas, call a doctor immediately whether any effects are felt or not. Often and apparent recovery follows shortly after exposure.

The gases do not damage the feeding value of forages. If anything, the nitrogen gases help by reducing the nitrate level in the silage.

Do not feed to animals the material that the gas has caused to turn a golden color.

Indiana Solon To Keynote Ohio Democrat Convention

By REED SMITH
AP Political Writer
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—U.S. Sen. Birch E. Bayh Jr., credited with fostering far-reaching education and conservation programs in neighboring Indiana, will keynote Ohio's Democratic state convention opening here Friday, Aug. 26.

State Chairman Morton Neipp of Toledo announced today the selection of Bayh (pronounced bye) for the main address at the two-day convention in the Neil House for more than 600 delegates.

The 34-year-old senator from Terre Haute, Ind., owner of a 340-acre farm in his native Vigo County, will share speaking honors Saturday morning with gubernatorial nominee Frazier Reams Jr., Neipp's Toledo law partner, and other Buckeye candidates.

High point of the convention windup Saturday afternoon will be adoption of a state platform, enumerating party aims and principles, on which nominees will focus their campaign for the Nov. 8 general election.

Eugene (Pete) O'Grady, state headquarters executive director, said he anticipated no floor fight over the platform but declined to rule out the possibility.

Richard E. Guggenheim of Cincinnati, platform chairman and former head of the Ohio civil rights commission said after recent hearings that education, conservation, civil rights and state finances would be major planks in a "positive" platform.

He scheduled a polishing-up session for platform drafters a day ahead of the convention opening.

Because of divergent views on financing education, conservation, mental health, welfare and other programs taking the lion's share of tax revenues, speculation mounted over the prospect of quick platform adoption.

Neipp and Guggenheim, who took over their posts from 10-year veterans to give the party in Ohio a "new look," face a major test of policy acceptance by the convention.

Guggenheim has asserted Democrats can outdo Republicans in moving the state ahead without new taxes but some party leaders shake their heads over that sand.

The convention opens at 7:30 p. m. Friday with Neipp presiding. Albert S. Porter of Cleveland, Cuyahoga County chairman, is down for temporary convention chairman with the prospect of being named to the permanent post.

Featured first day speakers include Virgil Musser of Massillon, national president of Young Democratic Clubs of America; Ron Logan of Dayton, president of the Ohio League of Young Democrats; and Mrs. Helen Gussert of Van Wert, Ohio national committeewoman.

Saturday sessions open at 9:30 a. m. and 2:30 p. m. with a luncheon sandwiched between them. A workshop for legislative candidates at 9 a. m. will precede the Saturday opener.

Statute provides for 500 at-large delegates named by executive committees, of the 88 counties on the basis of the Democratic vote for governor in the 1962 election.

Other delegates are members of the state central and executive committee, chairman of county central and executive committees, congressional and legislative candidates and nominees for state offices, except judicial.

Keynote Bayh rocketed to national political prominence by defeating 18-year veteran Homer Capehart in 1962. He formerly served as speaker of the Indiana House in 1959 and twice as minority leader in that chamber. An agricultural graduate of Purdue University, he received his law degree from Indiana U.

Harsha Speaks

Wild Duck Limit Change Is Sought

Congressman William H. Harsha, Ohio 6th District, came to the aid of Ohio sportsmen today by urging the Secretary of the Interior to relax the former stringent bag limits for mallard ducks and to increase the duration of the hunting season in the 14 States which comprise the Mississippi Flyway.

Harsha also urged his colleagues in each of these 14 States to join with him in these efforts espousing the cause of the sportsmen and duck hunters. He urged quick action by his colleagues and told them that time was of the essence in writing to the Secretary because he is expected to come to a decision this week.

Congressman Harsha suggested that "For years the duck hunter has been promised more and better hunting enjoyment as well as larger duck populations as a result of (1) a hike in the price of the duck hunting stamp which is purchased as post offices throughout the nation, (2) the kind of enlightened management programs that the Department of the Interior had pledged with the additional revenue from these hikes in the price of the duck hunting stamp, and (3) additional lease and purchase of wetlands.

The Ohio Republican also told the Secretary of the Interior that "I think we all realize that this program cannot be a success without hunter participation. Further disappointments cannot help but have an adverse effect on duck stamp sales and on the entire program itself."

The 14 States which comprise the Mississippi Flyway are: Ohio, Alabama, Arkansas, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kentucky, Louisiana, Michigan, Minnesota, Mississippi, Missouri, Tennessee and Wisconsin.

Red Chinese Experts Get U.S. Invite

WASHINGTON (AP)—Three physicists from Communist China have been invited to attend an international conference on high energy physics at the University of California, the Atomic Energy Commission reports.

They are Wen Yu Chang of the Peking Institute of Atomic Energy and Kuang Chou-chou and Ming Hu of Peking University. The conference will be held Aug. 31 through Sept. 7.

John A. Harris Jr., director of public information for the commission, said the subject of the conference, fundamental research on the composition of matter, is "particularly non-sensitive." He said the Chinese were invited "in keeping with an official desire to increase nonofficial contacts between the United States and Red China."

The invitations were extended by Dr. Edwin McMillan, director of the Lawrence Radiation Laboratory at Berkeley, the conference chairman; and Dr. W.H.K. Panofsky, director of the Stanford Linear Accelerator Center at Palo Alto.

The three physicists are not the first Chinese to be invited to come to the United States, but it would surprise officials here if Peking changed its policy and allowed them to attend.

No Quick End to U.S. Farm Price Support Programs Yet in Sight

By RICHARD POWERS
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)—Those huge farm surpluses, such as wheat, feed grains and dairy products, are sharply reduced or gone but Agriculture Department official see no quick ending of price support programs.

An aide to Secretary Orville E. Freeman, discounting possible elimination of support programs any time soon, said that if this were done farm surpluses could again mount sharply. Also he said, the small farmer needs the programs.

Another official said it would be "dangerous to eliminate the wheat and feed grains support programs soon," even though millions of additional acres of these crops will go back into production in 1967.

"It would be happy day if the department could retreat from price support programs and farmers could maintain their incomes," he said.

But the official made clear that no serious thought is presently being given to such a recommendation although the subject is kept under review.

World demand for U.S. wheat, feed grains and other supplies, coupled with the surplus disposal program known as PL480 which finances much of these reports, is primarily responsible for reducing stocks in this country.

Six years ago stocks of wheat in the United States totaled about 1.4 billion bushels, nearly three times the yearly domestic needs. But on June 30, the carry over of wheat stocks totaled about 535 million bushels, just enough to care for the domestic needs for a full year and considered desirable.

Similarly, back in 1960 stocks on hand of corn and other feed grains were about 85 million tons. These have shrunk to where it is expected the stocks on Oct. 1 will be between 47 million and 50 million tons.

As a result, shipments of these supplies abroad during the coming year are expected to be cut even though Freeman has authorized an increase in wheat acreage allotments and many millions of feed grain acres are going to go back into production in 1967.

One official noted that a world crop of 9.4 billion bushels has been estimated for this year, which would be a record. And he stated that the wheat crop for India is expected to be much better than last year; large amounts of U.S. grains have gone to India in the past few years to meet serious shortages there.

In addition, the official—in backing arguments why the support programs should be retained—said there is no way of knowing whether another "dust bowl" period such as in the 1930s might blight American farm land again and cut production.

Even though the world demand increases for U.S. supplies, he said, Congress may reduce the foreign aid program to finance export of American food. The official also noted that President Johnson in his Food for Freedom message stressed self-help programs for countries receiving U.S. supplies to stimulate their own food production.

Some people, the official said, are advocating elimination of all restraints on plantings by U.S. farmers, in view of world needs with the ever mounting population.

But, he said, if this were done there could be a quick buildup again of government-owned stocks, with a resulting drop in prices.

Four Varieties Of Wheat Listed As Undesirable

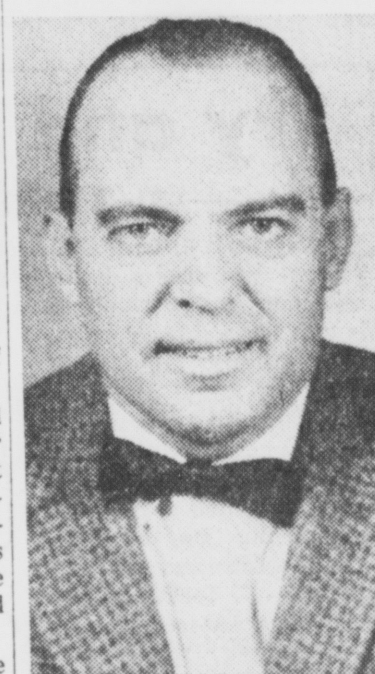

The Pickaway County ASC office has listed four varieties of wheat designated as undesirable for the 1967 crop year program.

The soft red winter wheat varieties are Kan Queen, Kavale, Nured and Seabreeze. According to ASC spokesman, they have been designated undesirable due to inferior baking and milling qualities and because they are not compatible with other predominant varieties grown in this area.

These varieties are not eligible for premiums and are subject to a discount of 20 cents per bushel from 1967 crop price support loan and purchase rates.

J. Austin Dowden, office manager for the Pickaway ASC County Committee, urged all wheat producers now planning their 1967 crop year operations to seed only those varieties recommended by the State Extension Service.

Drop in Stocks Rivals 1962 Fall

By ED MORSE
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market this week took its worst fall in more than four years, rivaling the drop of May 1962 just prior to the "Black Monday" plunge.

Wall Street was wrapped in gloom over high interest rates, tight money and the possible fate of business and the economy later in 1966 and in 1967. The market fell sharply every day.

But there was no panic, no rush to sell. Volume did pick up to 32,632,260 shares from 28,411,250 the week before. It was the largest since the week ended June 25, when 35.7 million shares changed hands.

Many of the most profitable glamor stocks in electronics, office equipment, photography and airlines were hit hard. Blue chips in all categories gave ground, resulting in stiff losses to the averages.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks fell 13.3 to 289.0, its lowest since Jan. 20, 1964. This was its worst weekly loss since the week of May 62, 1962, when it fell 16.3 in the worst weekly drop on record.

The Dow Jones Industrial average fell 35.91 this week to 804.62. This was its lowest since it dropped to 800.31 on June 8, 1946, and its worst loss since the same 1962 week when it declined 38.82.

On the "Black Monday" of May 28, 1962, the AP average fell 13.4 and the Dow Industrials 34.95. A temporary recovery followed that big shakeout—the worst since the 1929 crash—but the market did not reach its bottom until the end of June 1962.

Many Wall Streeters were asking this weekend whether the 1962 history would repeat. A strong technical rally, at least, is anticipated, but not lasting recovery until some sign that the tight money situation is being reversed, analysts say.

Of 1,581 issues traded this week, 1,393 stocks fell and 106 rose.

The 37-point fall of Xerox was one of the most sensational. Fairchild Camera dropped 12½ points, Polaroid 15, Itek 15½, Burroughs 8½ and Eastern Air Lines 6½.

Airlines rallied in the midst of a general market decline on Monday. They were spurred by another proposed settlement of the airline strike. Later in the week, however, the question whether the union would accept it was still in the air and there was some further selling of airlines.

The market plunged steeply Tuesday in advance of news which came after the close that leading banks were raising their prime interest rate to 6 per cent from 5½ per cent. The fall continued Wednesday but at a slower pace.

Another big loss came Thursday, when the Federal Reserve Board froze about $450 million of lendable funds by increasing required reserves of member banks.

A weak technical rally Friday morning was followed by a further slide.

Carry-Out Permit Issued Salvage Firm

A new liquor permit was issued for the Williamsport area this week, according to the Ohio Department of Liquor Control. Deercreek Salvage Co., Williamsport, was granted a new permit which allows only the sale of low-powered beer for carry-out purposes.

He urged quick action by his colleagues and told them that time was of the essence in writing to the Secretary because he is expected to come to a decision this week.

Congressman Harsha suggested that "For years the duck hunter has been promised more and better hunting enjoyment as well as larger duck populations as a result of (1) a hike in the price of the duck hunting stamp which is purchased as part of offices throughout the nation, (2) the kind of enlightened management programs that the Department of the Interior had pledged with these hikes in the price of the duck hunting stamp, and (3) additional lease and purchase of wetlands.

The Ohio Republican also told the Secretary of the Interior that "I think we all realize that this program cannot be a success without hunter participation. Further disappointments cannot help but have an adverse effect on duck stamp sales and on the entire program itself."

Red Chinese Experts Get U.S. Invite

WASHINGTON (AP)—Three physicists from Communist China have been invited to attend an international conference on high energy physics at the University of California, the Atomic Energy Commission reports.

They are Wen Yu Chang of the Peking Institute of Atomic Energy and Kuang Chou-chou and Ming Hu of Peking University. The conference will be held Aug. 31 through Sept. 7.

John A. Harris Jr., director of public information for the commission, said the subject of the conference, fundamental research on the composition of matter, is "particularly non-sensitive." He said the Chinese were invited "in keeping with an official desire to increase nonofficial contacts between the United States and Red China."

The invitations were extended by Dr. Edwin McMillan, director of the Lawrence Radiation Laboratory at Berkeley, the conference chairman; and Dr. W.H.K. Panofsky, director of the Stanford Linear Accelerator Center at Palo Alto.

The three physicists are not the first Chinese to be invited to come to the United States, but it would surprise officials here if Peking changed its policy and allowed them to attend.

No Quick End to U.S. Farm Price Support Programs Yet in Sight

By RICHARD POWERS
AP Farm Writer
WASHINGTON (AP)—Those

high farm surpluses, such as wheat, feed grains and dairy products, are sharply reduced or gone but Agriculture Department officials see no quick ending of price support programs.

An aide to Secretary Orville E. Freeman, discounting possible elimination of support programs any time soon, said that if this were done farm surpluses could again mount sharply. Also he said, the small farmer needs the programs.

Another official said it would be "dangerous to eliminate the wheat and feed grains support programs soon," even though millions of additional acres of these crops will go back into production in 1967.

"It would be happy day if the department could retreat from price support programs and farmers could maintain their incomes," he said.

But the official made clear that no serious thought is presently being given to such a recommendation although the subject is kept under review.

World demand for U.S. wheat, feed grains and other supplies, coupled with the surplus disposal program known as PL480 which finances much of these reports, is primarily responsible for reducing stocks in this country.

Six years ago stocks of wheat in the United States totaled about 1.4 billion bushels, nearly three times the yearly domestic needs. But on June 30, the carry over of wheat stocks totaled about 535 million bushels, just enough to care for the domestic needs for a full year and considered desirable.

Similarly, back in 1960 stocks on hand of corn and other feed grains were about 45 million tons. These have shrunk to where it is expected the stocks on Oct. 1 will be between 47 million and 50 million tons.

As a result, shipments of these supplies abroad during the coming year are expected to be cut even though Freeman has authorized an increase in wheat acreage allotments and many millions of feed grain acres are going to go back into production in 1967.

One official noted that a world crop of 9.4 billion bushels has been estimated for this year, which would be a record and he stated that the wheat crop for India is expected to be much better than last year; large amounts of U.S. grains have gone to India in the past few years to meet serious shortages there.

In addition, the official — in backing arguments why the support programs should be retained — said there is no way of knowing whether another "dust bowl" period such as in the 1930s might blight American farm land again and cut production.

Even though the world demand increases for U.S. supplies, he said, Congress may reduce the foreign aid program to finance export of American food. The official also noted that President Johnson in his Food for Freedom message stressed self-help programs for countries receiving U.S. supplies to stimulate their own food production.

Some people, the official said, are advocating elimination of all restraints on plantings by U.S. farmers, in view of world needs with the ever mounting population.

But, he said, if his were done there could be a quick buildup again of government-owned stocks, with a resulting drop in prices.

Four Varieties Of Wheat Listed As Undesirable

The Pickaway County ASC office has listed four varieties of wheat designated as undesirable for the 1967 crop year program.

The soft red winter wheat varieties are Kan Queen, Kawale, Nured and Seabreeze. According to ASC spokesmen, they have been designated undesirable due to inferior baking or milling qualities and because they are not compatible with other predominant varieties grown in this area.

These varieties are not eligible for premiums and are subject to a discount of 20 cents per bushel from 1967 crop price support loan and purchase rates.

J. Austin Dowden, office manager for the Pickaway ASC County Committee, urged all wheat producers now planning their 1967 crop year operations to seed only those varieties recommended by the State Extension Service.

Drop in Stocks Rivals 1962 Fall

By ED MORSE
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market this week took its worst fall in more than four years, rivaling the drop of May 1962 just prior to the "Black Monday" plunge.

Wall Street was wrapped in gloom over high interest rates, tight money and the possible fate of business and the economy later in 1966 and in 1967. The market fell sharply every day.

But there was no panic, no rush to sell. Volume did pick up to 32,632,260 shares from 28,411,250 the week before. It was the largest since the week ended June 25, when 35.7 million shares changed hands.

Many of the most profitable glamor stocks in electronics, office equipment, photography and airlines were hit hard. Blue chips in all categories gave ground, resulting in stiff losses to the averages.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks fell 13.3 to 289.0, its lowest since Jan. 20, 1964. This was its worst weekly loss since the week of May 62, 1962, when it fell 16.3 in the worst weekly drop on record.

The Dow Jones Industrial average fell 35.91 this week to 804.62. This was its lowest since it dropped to 800.31 on June 8, 1946, and its worst loss since the same 1962 week when it declined 38.82.

On the "Black Monday" of May 28, 1962, the AP average fell 13.4 and the Dow Industrials 34.95. A temporary recovery followed that big shakeout — the worst since the 1929 crash — but the market did not reach its bottom until the end of June 1962.

Many Wall Streeters were asking this weekend whether the 1962 history would repeat. A strong technical rally, at least, is anticipated, but not lasting recovery until some sign that the tight money situation is being reversed, analysts say.

Of 1,581 issues traded this week, 1,393 stocks fell and 106 rose.

The 37-point fall of Xerox was one of the most sensational. Fairchild Camera dropped 12 1/2 points, Polaroid 15, Itek 15 1/2, Burroughs 8 1/2 and Eastern Air Lines 6 1/2.

Airlines rallied in the midst of a general market decline on Monday. They were spurred by another proposed settlement of the airline strike. Later in the week, however, the question whether the union would accept it was still in the air and there was some further selling of airlines.

The market plunged steeply Tuesday in advance of news which came after the close that leading banks were raising their prime interest rate to 6 per cent from 5 1/2 per cent. The fall continued Wednesday but at a slower pace.

Another big loss came Thursday, when the Federal Reserve Board froze about $450 million of lendable funds by increasing required reserves of member banks.

A weak technical rally Friday morning was followed by a further slide.

LAND'S GARAGE

Stoutsville, Ohio — Phone GR 4-6750

WASHINGTON (AP) — Political campaign financing is producing the usual: some handwringing, some indignation, some gloomy forebodings about the dwindling chances of the poor man in politics.

This has been happening on and off all year in Congress but by the time Congress goes home it probably will have done nothing, as it has for years despite the cries for reform.

Just last month Rep. James C. Wright Jr., D-Tex., said the high cost of campaigning is making it impossible for any but the wealthy — "or the willing wards of the wealthy" — to seek public office.

And Thursday Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., said unless something is done it will be "practically only for the rich to seek high elective office."

"Colossal" was Sen. Thurston B. Morton's word for present campaign costs. This Kentucky Republican is his party's campaign chairman in the Senate.

Under present law no candidate for the House can spend more than $5,000 in his bid for election, no candidate for the Senate more than $25,000.

Wright has said probably every member of Congress has knowingly evaded the purpose of the law limiting election campaign expenses.

The present law permits $5,000 contributions to any number of committees set up to aid a candidate.

With that in mind, no doubt, President Johnson last May asked Congress to reform campaign financing, saying the present $5,000 limit could no longer be evaded by "putting the maximum amount into different pockets of the same suit."

Under existing law national political committees can raise and spend no more than $3 million in any one year — but there is no limit on the number of such committees and the law doesn't apply to committees active in only one state.

Johnson, when he asked Congress for sweeping reforms in May, proposed among other things:

1. All candidates and committees supporting them for federal office would have to report, clearly and promptly, the sources of all their campaign funds and how the fund are spent.

2. Members of Congress would have to disclose all gifts and income.

3. Change existing law and make the ceilings on the size of contributions to campaigns really mean what they say.

4. Encourage widespread public participation in the financing of political campaigns through tax deductions of up to $100 for campaign contributions.

This got a cool reception. Members of Congress have never tumbled over one another in their haste to disclose the sources of their campaign income. Chances for passage of Johnson's program this year look zero.

Long has a plan for the federal treasury to pay the cost of presidential campaigns at the rate of $1 a vote. He said this would free nominees from the promises they now have to make to wealthy contributors.

But there's a hassle over this, just as there is over Johnson's proposals, and over practically any proposed change connected with campaign financing.

It's just possible that before Congress quits for the year — perhaps in October — the Senate may pass something. It's unlikely. But there can't be any change unless the House also approves. It shows little inclination to do this.

Jumping to Some Conclusions

NEW YORK (AP) — Jumping to conclusions:

Professional confidence men rarely go on diets. Being portly often is helpful to them, they find, for the public instinctively tends to put more trust in a man who has a bit of a bay window.

No matter how often the voters change administrations, they never seem to put a man in power strong enough to get the U.S. Post Office Department to put more glue on its stamps.

The real reason most men don't get divorces is that if they even bring up the subject, their wives get angry.

If bartenders had their way, it would still be illegal to serve a woman a drink in public, or minister.

Security is hard to find, but in New York City the most secure people seem to be those who own a delicatessen. They almost never go broke.

The worst sin that can be committed in the kitchen is to undercook turkey. Runner-up: Trying to cover up a culinary disaster by putting in more garlic.

You can win money by betting that two out of the next three women you see wearing big pearl button earrings will be plump, and below average height.

Any restaurant waiter will tell you that millionaires order corned beef hash more often than they do steaks for lunch.

The most talkative people at cocktail parties are psychiatrists. Their ears are bent so often by others that they take every chance they can to get even. Besides, as long as they hold the floor, they know that no one else can try to ask them for a free diagnosis.

Most of the characters who keep grand pianos in tiny Greenwich Village apartments can't play them. But the pianos do give a cultural tone — and they're wonderful for storing bottled wine.

Every other cab driver under 35 in Manhattan isn't really an unemployed actor. But he pretends he is — and grows long sideburns as part of the pretense — in order to win bigger tips from romantic lady passengers.

Crooks prefer to snatch pocketbooks from elderly women on sunny rather than rainy days. On rainy days the old gals carry sharp-pointed umbrellas.

You begin to grow up in this world when you realize you can't please everybody. Even if they put gin in the office water cooler, some grouch would complain he would rather have vodka.

The Business World

NEW YORK (AP) — If the pace of business boom is slowing down — as government officials assure us — why are the effects of its overheating becoming daily more pronounced.

Money is getting tighter, prices are rising, demands for credit are growing, business firms see greater need to expand their plants, larger wage demands are arousing fears of a new wage-price spiral that will further erode the buying power of the consumer's dollar.

All this is more evident in today's more moderate pace than when the economic upswing was really a crashing boom.

Comparing the rate at which the economy was growing in the first three months of this year with the slower pace this summer tells little or nothing about the amount of strain produced, according to the Morgan Guaranty Trust Co., New York.

"The relevant thing is the growth rate in relation to the economy's capacity for growth," the bank says in its August survey today, "and at a 4 per cent-or-under unemployment reading, such as now exists, the upside leeway for non-inflationary expansion is modest if it exists at all."

The bank's economists list several reasons why they think "the economy will continue to bump up against its full employment ceiling for some time to come."

One is that the federal budget will be more of a stimulant in the second half of the year than it was in the first. Spending for Viet Nam will be one factor. Others will be medicare payments, and pay increases for civilian and military employees of the government.

A substantial net manpower drain to the armed forces as inductions exceed discharges will keep the labor market tight.

The bank doubts if there'll be a further drop in auto sales such as upset the market in the spring. And it sees the decline in home building more than offset by strength elsewhere in the economy.

All of this means continuing pressure on both prices and wages. A high employment economy, such as today's, tends to push demand in excess of the ability to supply it.

Speeding up corporate tax payments this year, and withholding more from personal paychecks, has cut the borrowing needs of the U.S. Treasury. But it has added to the needs of corporations and individuals to borrow. And the resulting increased demand for loans is now bearing fruit in mounting interest rates.

A foreman in the Philadelphia Mint admitted selling imperfect coins to collectors. He liked to send bad money after good.

The Mint employee was caught after faulty money began flooding the market. Thin dimes, 43-cent dollars.

The Mint employee is out on $1,000 bond. Worth $430.

There's a law forbidding mutilation of money. Congress does that.

Senator Dirksen has silver dollar cuff links. Just a little mutilation, but presumably they remind him not to vote money off the cuff.

President Johnson thinks inflation will be the key issue in the November elections. A matter of cash or not carry.

Try and Stop Me

SOME TIME after hostilities ceased in World War I, General Pershing submitted to some much needed dental treatment. A few weeks later he was outraged to learn that his extracted molars were being offered for sale under the name of "Famous General's Teeth" — for fifty cents apiece.

Hastily the good general dispatched a young aide to buy up the lot. The aide returned with a bag full — 67 teeth, to be exact, but advised General Pershing, "They say they expect a fresh shipment tomorrow!"

A dignified old lady braced the director of a morning TV show and said she'd like to be interviewed thereon. "What is your claim to fame?" asked the director indulgently. "Well, for one thing," said the old lady, "I'm immortal." Jolted, the director asked, "How long have you known you're immortal?" "Since one day during the French Revolution," said the old lady calmly. "The day they guillotined me!"

Speaking of YOUR HEALTH...

By LESTER L. COLEMAN, M.D.

Travelers to Mexico and other tropical and temperate countries have always been struck by an intestinal disturbance sometimes called "Montezuma's Revenge." Short-lived attacks of nausea and diarrhea were distressing but left no severe after-effects. Occasionally, these symptoms persisted and were finally traced to an infection caused by the entamoeba histolytica.

This disease, amebiasis, is an severe inflammation of the colon and is accompanied by gastro-intestinal complaints, fever, fatigue and vague aches and pains all over the body.

Even in the United States, there are perhaps ten per cent of the population affected by this disease. In specific areas the rate may go as high as 40 per cent without any symptoms in people who are the carriers and distributors of this condition.

In Mexico the condition occurs frequently and when neglected can be responsible for many severe complications and liver abscesses. Unless treated early and vigorously prolonged invalidism and a high rate of mortality occurs.

Rigid cleanliness and hygiene coupled with strict inspection of all food handlers is the best way to prevent contamination of food.

The problem is so extensive in Mexico that Dr. Francisco Biagi and his colleagues at the National University of Mexico Medical School have concentrated their efforts to eradicate

WASHINGTON (AP) — Political campaign financing is producing the usual: some handwringing, some indignation, some gloomy forebodings about the dwindling chances of the poor man in politics.

This has been happening on and off all year in Congress but by the time Congress goes home it probably will have done nothing, as it has for years despite the cries for reform.

Just last month Rep. James C. Wright Jr., D-Tex., said the high cost of campaigning is making it impossible for any but the wealthy — "or the willing wards of the wealthy" — to seek public office.

And Thursday Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., said unless something is done it will be "practically only for the rich to seek high elective office."

"Colossal" was Sen. Thurston B. Morton's word for present campaign costs. This Kentucky Republican is his party's campaign chairman in the Senate.

Under present law no candidate for the House can spend more than $5,000 in his bid for election, no candidate for the Senate more than $25,000.

Wright has said probably every member of Congress has knowingly evaded the purpose of the law limiting election campaign expenses.

The present law permits $5,000 contributions to any number of committees set up to aid a candidate.

With that in mind, no doubt, President Johnson last May asked Congress to reform campaign financing, saying the present $5,000 limit could no longer be evaded by "putting the maximum amount into different pockets of the same suit."

Under existing law national political committees can raise and spend no more than $3 million in any one year — but there is no limit on the number of such committees and the law doesn't apply to committees active in only one state.

Johnson, when he asked Congress for sweeping reforms in May, proposed among other things:

1. All candidates and committees supporting them for federal office would have to report, clearly and promptly, the sources of all their campaign funds and how the fund are spent.

2. Members of Congress would have to disclose all gifts and income.

3. Change existing law and make the ceilings on the size of contributions to campaigns really mean what they say.

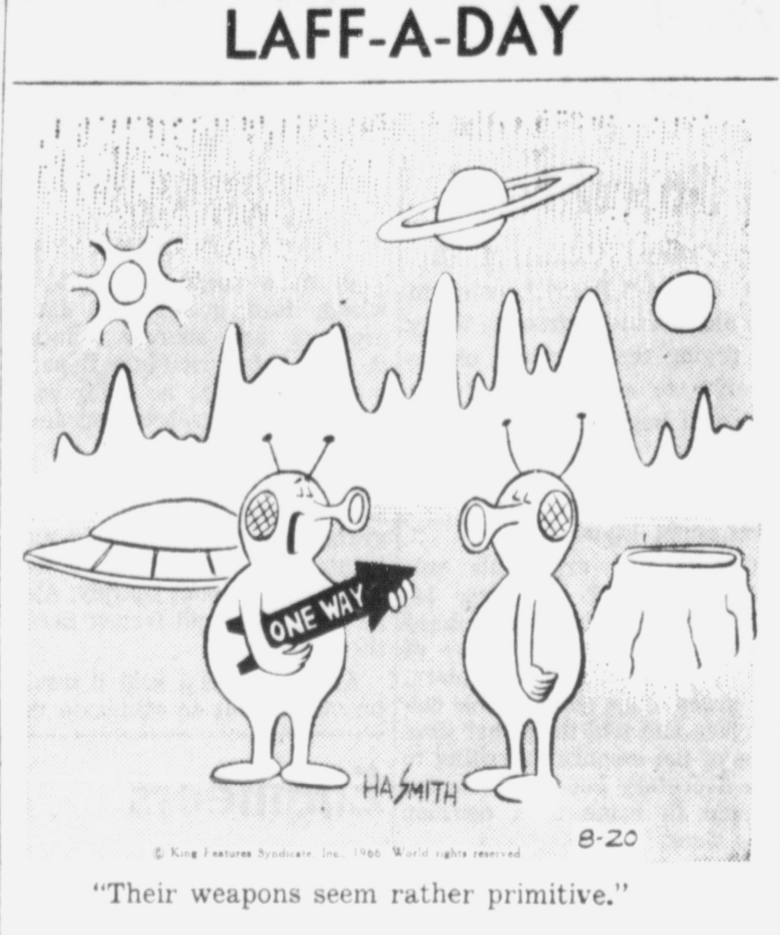

4. Encourage widespread public participation in the financing of political campaigns through tax deductions of up to $100 for campaign contributions.

This got a cool reception. Members of Congress have never tumbled over one another in their haste to disclose the sources of their campaign income. Chances for passage of Johnson's program this year look zero.

Long has a plan for the federal treasury to pay the cost of presidential campaigns at the rate of $1 a vote. He said this would free nominees from the promises they now have to make to wealthy contributors.

But there's a hassle over this, just as there is over Johnson's proposals, and over practically any proposed change connected with campaign financing.

It's just possible that before Congress quits for the year — perhaps in October — the Senate may pass something. It's unlikely. But there can't be any change unless the House also approves. It shows little inclination to do this.

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

SOME TIME after hostilities ceased in World War I, General Pershing submitted to some much needed dental treatment. A few weeks later he was outraged to learn that his extracted molars were being offered for sale under the name of "Famous General's Teeth" — for fifty cents apiece.

Hastily the good general dispatched a young aide to buy up the lot. The aide returned with a bag full—67 teeth, to be exact, but advised General Pershing, "They say they expect a fresh shipment tomorrow!"

A dignified old lady braced the director of a morning TV show and said she'd like to be interviewed thereon. "What is your claim to fame?" asked the director indulgently. "Well, for one thing," said the old lady, "I'm immortal." Jolted, the director asked, "How long have you known you're immortal?" "Since one day during the French Revolution," said the old lady calmly. "The day they guillotined me!"

Jumping to Some Conclusions

By Hal Boyle

NEW YORK (AP) — Jumping to conclusions:

Professional confidence men rarely go on diets. Being portly often is helpful to them, they find, for the public instinctively tends to put more trust in a man who has a bit of a bay window.

No matter how often the voters change administrations, they never seem to put a man in power strong enough to get the U.S. Post Office Department to put more glue on its stamps.

The real reason most men don't get divorces is that if they even bring up the subject, their wives get angry.

If bartenders had their way, it would still be illegal to serve a woman a drink in public, or minister.

Security is hard to find, but in New York City the most secure people seem to be those who own a delicatessen. They almost never go broke.

The worst sin that can be committed in the kitchen is to undercook turkey. Runner-up: Trying to cover up a culinary disaster by putting in more garlic.

You can win money by betting that two out of the next three women you see wearing big pearl button earrings will be plump, and below average height.

Any restaurant waiter will tell you that millionaires order corned beef hash more often than they do steaks for lunch.

The most talkative people at cocktail parties are psychiatrists. Their ears are bent so often by others that they take every chance they can to get even. Besides, as long as they hold the floor, they know that no one else can try to ask them for a free diagnosis.

Most of the characters who keep grand pianos in tiny Greenwich Village apartments can't play them. But the pianos do give a cultural tone — and they're wonderful for storing bottled wine.

Every other cab driver under 35 in Manhattan isn't really an unemployed actor. But he pretends he is — and grows long sideburns as part of the pretense — in order to win bigger tips from romantic lady passengers.

Crooks prefer to snatch pocketbooks from elderly women on sunny rather than rainy days. On rainy days the old gals carry sharp-pointed umbrellas.

You begin to grow up in this world when you realize you can't please everybody. Even if they put gin in the office water cooler, some grouch would complain he would rather have vodka.

The Business World

By Sam Dawson

NEW YORK (AP) — If the pace of business boom is slowing down — as government officials assure us — why are the effects of its overheating becoming daily more pronounced.

Money is getting tighter, prices are rising, demands for credit are growing, business firms see greater need to expand their plants, larger wage demands are arousing fears of a new wage-price spiral that will further erode the buying power of the consumer's dollar.

All this is more evident in today's more moderate pace than when the economic upswing was really a crashing boom.

Comparing the rate at which the economy was growing in the first three months of this year with the slower pace this summer tells little or nothing about the amount of strain produced, according to the Morgan Guaranty Trust Co., New York.

"The relevant thing is the growth rate in relation to the economy's capacity for growth," the bank says in its August survey today, "and at a 4 per cent-or-under unemployment reading, such as now exists, the upside leeway for non-inflationary expansion is modest if it exists at all."

The bank's economists list several reasons why they think "the economy will continue to bump up against its full employment ceiling for some time to come."

One is that the federal budget will be more of a stimulant in the second half of the year than it was in the first. Spending for Viet Nam will be one factor. Other will be medicare payments, and pay increases for civilian and military employees of the government.

A substantial net manpower drain to the armed forces as inductions exceed discharges will keep the labor market tight.

The bank doubts if there'll be a further drop in auto sales such as upset the market in the spring. And it sees the decline in home building more than offset by strength elsewhere in the economy.

All of this means continuing pressure on both prices and wages. A high employment economy, such as today's, tends to push demand in excess of the ability to supply it.

Speeding up corporate tax payments this year, and withholding more from personal paychecks, has cut the borrowing needs of the U.S. Treasury. But it has added to the needs of corporations and individuals to borrow. And the resulting increased demand for loans is now bearing fruit in mounting interest rates.

Speaking of YOUR HEALTH...

By LESTER L. COLEMAN, M.D.

Travelers to Mexico and other tropical and temperate countries have always been struck by an intestinal disturbance sometimes called "Montezuma's Revenge." Short-lived attacks of nausea and diarrhea were distressing but left no severe after-effects. Occasionally, these symptoms persisted and were finally traced to an infection caused by the entamoeba histolytica.

This disease, amebiasis, is a severe inflammation of the colon and is accompanied by gastro-intestinal complaints, fever, fatigue and vague aches and pains all over the body.

Even in the United States, there are perhaps ten per cent of the population affected by this disease. In specific areas the rate may go as high as 40 per cent without any symptoms in people who are the carriers and distributors of this condition.

In Mexico the condition occurs frequently and when neglected can be responsible for many severe complications and liver abscesses. Unless treated early and vigorously prolonged invalidism and a high rate of mortality occurs.

Rigid cleanliness and hygiene coupled with strict inspection of all food handlers is the best way to prevent contamination of food.

The problem is so extensive in Mexico that Dr. Francisco Biagi and his colleagues at the National University of Mexico Medical School have concentrated their efforts to eradicate amebiasis with a newly found chemical.

They chose almost a thousand people known to be infected with this parasite and treated them two times a week with the drug clemamide for a whole year. Dr. Biagi concluded that it is now possible to carry out a program of prevention in the general population and in visitors by adding small amounts of the medicine to ordinary drinking water.

He believes that hundreds of thousands of visitors from the United States would be relieved of the possibility of bringing home this severe type of dysentery.

The control of amebiasis is strictly a public health menace that calls for an energetic attack on the problem if it is to be eradicated from any country.

What precautions can be taken in foreign tropical lands against an attack of dysentery? Drinking bottled water is absolutely essential to avoid the distressing intestinal symptoms of dysentery. Some vegetables and fruits are grown in soil that is contaminated. These should never be eaten raw.

Fruits with a thick covering like oranges and bananas can be safe when peeled. Some fruits are washed in polluted water and may be a source of infection.

Avoid the easily spoiled custard and stay away from unusual "hot dishes". Rely on the more usual standard diet. Ice

Dear Abby:

By Abigail Van Buren

Warn Drinking Mother of Laws

DEAR ABBY: A 35-year-old neighbor woman asked our 19-year-old son if he would like to go out and have a beer with her. They left at 9 p. m. and didn't get home until after 2 the next morning. The place they went to closes at midnight, so they bought some beer to take out and went riding around.

This woman left her own children at home. Her husband is a truck driver so he doesn't know what goes on when he's away.

Our son has always been a good boy, Abby. When he came home his reaction was that of embarrassment. He said he didn't know she intended to stay out so late. How would you handle this?

UPSET MOTHER
DEAR UPSET: A 19-year-old "boy" shouldn't need a bodyguard. And if he's a "good boy," he'll have sense enough to decline her next invitation, should there be one.

I would let the woman know, however, that there are laws against contributing to the delinquency of minors, and also neglecting one's own children. Too bad there are better heads on beers than on some people.

TODAY In History

Today is Saturday, Aug. 20, the 22nd day of 1966. There are 133 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1930, the first comprehensive demonstration of the possibility of television reception took place in New York City.

On this date: In 1741, Alaska was discovered by the Danish navigator Vitus Bering.

In 1898, the U.S. fleet sailed into New York harbor after the Spanish-American War.

In 1914, the Germans occupied the city of Brussels during World War I.

In 1934, the United States became a member of the International Labor Organization.

In 1940, Britain announced a plan to lease naval and air bases in the Western Hemisphere to the United States.

Ten years ago — Fourteen days after Red China lifted a seven-year ban on visits to Communist China by U.S. newsmen, President Eisenhower said he was standing behind the State Department in forbidding the use of U.S. passports for travel behind the bamboo curtain.

Five years ago — Vice President Lyndon Johnson joined thousands of West Berliners in greeting a 1,500-man U.S. battle group sent to West Berlin by President Kennedy to beef up the 5,000-man garrison there.

One year ago — President Johnson granted a pardon to T. Lamar Caudle, a high Truman administration official who had been convicted and imprisoned for conspiring to defraud the government.

Views on Television — Radio

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — They make such a big deal about putting on a television show," scoffs sleepy-eyed Dean Martin. "Meetings, meetings, meetings all the time. Me, I do it the easy way."

Indeed he does. The Dean Martin method of staging a variety hour so shocked the sweat-and-strain laborers of the TV vineyards that all were predicting his way pointed to disaster.

But Martin won the battle of the ratings and will be bouncing back on NBC with another 30 hours in the coming season.

"I've got writers, director, producer. I let them do what they're supposed to do. I go to the studio at 1 on Sunday afternoon and I'm out by 9. That's all there is to it," Martin explained.

Martin makes everything seem easy. He already has six TV shows completed and is now starring in another Matt Helm romp, "Murderer's Row." He is also slated for a Western with George Peppard at Universal and a comedy with Stella Stevens at Columbia.

He is casual about his present prosperity: "I made three million dollars last year and only left the house four times."

He is jesting about the latter, but the three - million figure could well be accurate. He reports that his first Matt Helm epic, "The Silencers," grossed $12 million and he owns 10 per cent. That plus his other films, the TV show, records, his appearances in Las Vegas and elsewhere put him in the same tycoon class with his pal Frank Sinatra.

Martin's daughters, Gail and Claudia, have careers of their own. And son Dino is a teen-age smash with his Dino, Desi (Arnaz) and Billy combo. They play a number in "Murderer's Row."

"The kid makes a lot of money," says his admiring father. "Now he wants to buy a Ferrari, even though he can't drive it yet. He's only 15. When I was his age, I was trying to buy skates."

His entire family picture is satisfactory, said Martin, with one exception: "If I could only get my mother-in-law to work!"

Dear Abby: By Abigail Van Buren
Warn Drinking Mother of Laws

DEAR ABBY: A 35-year-old neighbor woman asked our 19-year-old son if he would like to go out and have a beer with her. They left at 9 p. m. and didn't get home until after 2 the next morning. The place they went to closes at midnight, so they bought some beer to take out and went riding around.

This woman left her own children at home. Her husband is a truck driver so he doesn't know what goes on when he's away.

Our son has always been a good boy, Abby. When he came home his reaction was that of embarrassment. He said he didn't know she intended to stay out so late. How would you handle this?

UPSET MOTHER
DEAR UPSET: A 19-year-old "boy" shouldn't need a bodyguard. And if he's a "good boy," he'll have sense enough to decline her next invitation, should there be one.

I would let the woman know, however, that there are laws against contributing to the delinquency of minors, and also neglecting one's own children. Too bad there are better heads on beers than on some people.

DEAR ABBY: I have an awful problem that I'm sure many other girls have. You see, I wear braces and when my boy friend kisses me it feels like someone is hitting me in the mouth with a barbed wire fence. I like him a lot, but because of this it makes me dread having to kiss him. Do you have any suggestions?

KAREN
DEAR KAREN: Yes. Tell him to slow up when he gets to the fence.

DEAR ABBY: We have a lovely home and I am very particular about keeping it clean. We have a baby girl who will be starting to creep soon. My problem is my husband. He insists on cutting his toe nails in the living room. I find his toe nail clippings all over the living room carpet, and even on the coffee table.

I have told him I don't like it, but he does it anyway. Our baby will be creeping soon, and you know how babies pick up every little thing off the floor and put it in their mouths. It is such a gruesome thought! What should I do?

WORRIED
DEAR WORRIED: Explain to the baby (the big one you're married to) that toe nail clippings can do the same kind of damage to a baby's stomach as broken glass, and he surely wouldn't leave broken glass around for the baby to eat, would he?

If that doesn't stop him, hide the scissors.

TODAY In History

Today is Saturday, Aug. 20, the 222nd day of 1966. There are 133 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1930, the first comprehensive demonstration of the possibility of television reception took place in New York City.

On this date: In 1741, Alaska was discovered by the Danish navigator Vitus Bering.

In 1898, the U.S. fleet sailed into New York harbor after the Spanish-American War.

In 1914, the Germans occupied the city of Brussels during World War I.

In 1934, the United States became a member of the International Labor Organization.

In 1940, Britain announced a plan to lease naval and air bases in the Western Hemisphere to the United States.

Ten years ago — Fourteen days after Red China lifted a seven-year ban on visits to Communist China by U.S. newsmen, President Eisenhower said he was standing behind the State Department in forbidding the use of U.S. passports for travel behind the bamboo curtain.

Five years ago — Vice President Lyndon Johnson joined thousands of West Berliners in greeting a 1,500-man U.S. battle group sent to West Berlin by President Kennedy to beef up the 5,000-man garrison there.

One year ago — President Johnson granted a pardon to T. Lamar Caudle, a high Truman administration official who had been convicted and imprisoned for conspiring to defraud the government.

Roll Reunion Set
The 32nd Annual Roll Reunion will be held Aug. 28 at the Ross County Fairgrounds in Chillicothe.
A basket dinner will be served at noon.

Views on Television — Radio

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — They make such a big deal about putting on a television show," scoffs sleepy-eyed Dean Martin. "Meetings, meetings, meetings all the time. Me, I do it the easy way."

Indeed he does. The Dean Martin method of staging a variety hour so shocked the sweat-and-strain laborers of the TV vineyards that all were predicting his way pointed to disaster.

But Martin won the battle of the ratings and will be bouncing back on NBC with another 30 hours in the coming season.

"I've got writers, director, producer. I let them do what they're supposed to do. I go to the studio at 1 on Sunday afternoon and I'm out by 9. That's all there is to it," Martin explained.

Martin makes everything seem easy. He already has six TV shows completed and is now starring in another Matt Helm romp, "Murderer's Row." He is also slated for a Western with George Peppard at Universal and a comedy with Stella Stevens at Columbia.

He is casual about his present prosperity: "I made three million dollars last year and only left the house four times."

He is jesting about the latter, but the three-million figure could well be accurate. He reports that his first Matt Helm epic, "The Silencers," grossed $12 million and he owns 10 per cent. That plus his other films, the TV show, records, his appearances in Las Vegas and elsewhere put him in the same tycoon class with his pal Frank Sinatra.

Martin's daughters, Gail and Claudia, have careers of their own. And son Dino is a teen-age smash with his Dino, Desi (Arnaz) and Billy combo. They play a number in "Murderer's Row."

"The kid makes a lot of money," says his admiring father. "Now he wants to buy a Ferrari, even though he can't drive it yet. He's only 15. When I was his age, I was trying to buy skates."

His entire family picture is satisfactory, said Martin, with one exception: "If I could only get my mother-in-law to work!"

Akron 'Zippers' Gunning For Mid-Am Loop Berth

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The athletic director at Akron University says "it may take a long time" but the Zips are gunning for a spot in the Mid-American Conference.

"I know I reflect the thinking of the university's committee on athletics when I say we would like to join the Mid-American," Ken "Red" Cochrane told The Associated Press.

"But this is not going to happen overnight," he added. And it is known that the MAC's Council of Presidents, the powerful policy-making body of the conference, mixed expansion talk at a meeting late last year.

Perhaps the biggest roadblock the Zips face is jumping from small college to university status. The Mid-American probably would demand such sanction before even considering a school's application.

Akron, Ohio's latest state university and expanding rapidly, last Wednesday announced its withdrawal from the 15-member Ohio Conference.

The university said it was "impractical to comply with the Ohio Conference rule" on aid to athletes, which it termed restrictive.

The decision to quit the OC came as no surprise and was in the rumor mill for some time. Akron U. President Norman A. Auburn said the other OC schools were "apprehensive of the athletic future in view of Akron's continuing expansion."

The Zips never won an OC football championship but lately have dominated the basketball picture with three straight titles.

"This is a five-year proposition before you start to see any results," Cochrane noted. "We have the facilities and are growing and so is the population."

Bob James, commissioner of the seven-team Mid-American, said that no formal application had been received from Akron.

He said the conference "at this time does not have specific requirements for new members."

The makeup of the Mid-Am, which consists of Miami, Bowling Green, Toledo, Kent State, Maumee Little League Entry Loses in Meet FAIRBORN, Ohio (AP)—The finals of the Northern Regional Little League Tournament today matched Kankakee, Ill., and Kokomo, Ind.

The other teams in the four-state preliminary to the national Little League championship test played Friday for third place, with Carthage, Mo. beating Maumee, Ohio, 8-0.

George Strickland, 40-year-old third base coach for the Tribe and shortstop on the Indians' 1954 pennant-winning club, takes over as manager for the rest of the season.

Reds Twice Miss Chance At Victory

HOUSTON (AP)—The Cincinnati Reds twice missed their chance for the big inning and suffered a 4-3 defeat at the hands of the Houston Astros Friday night.

It was the Reds' second defeat in a row and their fourth in five games on the current road trip.

Their first big chance came in the eighth inning, with Houston leading 3-1. Pete Rose led off with a double and scored on Deron Johnson's single after a walk and a strike-out.

Another walk filled the bases — but Claude Raymond, third Houston pitcher in the inning, retired Don Pavletich on a short fly ball and struck out Leo Cardenas.

The Reds tied the game in the ninth, but did not get started until after two outs. Rose then singled and scored on Tommy Helms' double down the left field line.

Raymond walked the next two batters before getting Dick Simpson to fly out. The Astros won the game in their half of the inning when Sonny Jackson singled with two out and scored on successive singles by Joe Morgan and Rusty Staub.

Van Wert Quarry Death Mystery Grows Darker

VAN WERT, Ohio (AP) — Ohio and Indiana authorities were on the lookout today for the auto owned by a 51-year-old Chicago man whose body was found in a quarry pond near here Aug. 11.

Sheriff W. L. Clay said Chicago authorities informed him that an Ohio man left the apartment of Darrell Robert Williams Friday night supposedly en route for Cincinnati in Williams' car.

Sheriff Clay said his information is that the 1966 model car, with Indiana license plates, was pulling a trailer containing Williams' clothing and other items.

Clay said he wants to talk to the man to see if he can shed any light on the mysterious circumstances surrounding Williams' death.

The body found by a fisherman was identified just Friday through an FBI fingerprint report.

It developed that two weeks ago a Chicago General Electric plant dropped him from its payroll "because he failed to return from his vacation."

Williams worked at GE's Fort Wayne, Ind., plant as a cashier for 23 years. He transferred to Chicago two months ago, soon after he was divorced, and worked only nine days before going on vacation.

A GE spokesman said the Chicago plant's personnel office received a request that Williams' two-week vacation be extended one week for health reasons. The request was granted.

Williams' body had been wrapped in bedding from two Chicago hotels and placed in a cardboard box before it was put in the pond. The hotels said Williams was unknown to them.

An autopsy report, from a pathologist in Cincinnati, gave suffocation or strangulation as the apparent cause of death. Clay said the report indicated Williams had been dead four to six weeks before his body was found.

Church was admitted to the hospital with right arm and leg injuries. Bonnie Lou Church, 25, a passenger, was admitted with facial lacerations and possible back injury. Another passenger, Elmer Thomas, 20, suffered neck and back injuries and was admitted to the hospital.

Jester, traveling west on Route 22, operated his auto left of center, the accident report stated. An oncoming auto, driven by Mrs. Oprie L. Disaster Area

(Continued from Page One) province. He said about 90 per cent of all buildings in the city of Erzurum, with a population of 55,000 were demolished, as were most of those in Hinis Township. The local hospital also was destroyed.

The casualty reports from the four stricken provinces — Erzurum, Mus, Bingol and Bitlis — rose as the Turkish government with the help of the U.S. Air Force mounted a massive emergency aid and rescue operation.

The Turkish 3rd Army based in the city of Erzurum, largest urban center in the disaster area, sent troops and trucks into the surrounding mountainous countryside to reach residents of ruined villages.

The U.S. Air Force sent one plane load of doctors and medical supplies into the stricken area from Ankara and two others from Adana and alerted two more plane loads to follow.

The Americans rushed in 7,000 pounds of medical supplies and stood ready to fly in more.

The quakes began at 2:30 p.m. local time Friday. The newspaper Milliyet reported it was very strong for 20 seconds and was felt in Armenia and the neighboring Soviet Union.

The Erzurum weather bureau said the earth tremors lasted five minutes.

The Soviet news agency listed the intensity of the quake as 9 on the 12-point Soviet scale, equal to 7.5 on the 10-point Richter scale used in the West.

Train Strikes Car at Ashville

A 40-year-old Lancaster man sustained only minor injuries Friday afternoon when his auto was struck by an N & W freight train at the Route 752 crossing north of Ashville.

Paul A. Zvada was taken to Mercy Hospital, Columbus, where he was treated and released for lacerations of the head and bruises to the left shoulder.

Zvada, according to Deputy Sheriff Charles Jones, pulled onto the railroad tracks and the northbound train struck his vehicle on the right front end. Zvada's 1966 auto was extensively damaged in the accident. The N&W engineer was Robert Schuler.

The auto - train mishap occurred at 2:15 p. m. Friday. Zvada was cited for failure to yield the right-of-way at a railroad crossing.

Minor Blaze Doused

Circleville firemen answered one emergency call Friday.

A minor blaze broke out in the basement of the Robert Miller residence at 1079 Georgia Road. Firemen said the fire started in the area of a stored lawnmower. Damage was estimated at $50 to the mower and basement.

Aussies Hunt Fleeing Reds

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Australian infantrymen hunted remnants of a North Vietnamese battalion 40 miles southeast of Saigon today after battering the Communists with artillery fire and killing at least 227 of them.

Gen. William C. Westmoreland, U.S. commander in Viet Nam, called the Aussies' action a "significant victory."

Over North Viet Nam, U.S. pilots pounded oil depots in the southern panhandle Friday and left the area exploding in flames, the U.S. military command said.

Elsewhere, the ground war was relatively quiet. U.S. troops reported little or no contact.

At coastal Qui Nhon 280 miles southeast of Saigon, 800 fresh troops of the U.S. 1st Air Cavalry Division came ashore today, raising the total of American manpower in South Viet Nam to 297,000 men. The new troops moved immediately to the division's central highland headquarters at An Khe.

Westmoreland sent a congratulatory message to the Aussies for their battle of Thursday night when they hurled back a human-wave attack by perhaps as many as 1,000 Hanoi regulars.

A U.S. spokesman said American fliers flew 113 missions over the Communist north Friday were limited to the Hai-phong area and the southern panhandle by bad weather.

He said the U.S. pilots struck eight oil dumps and reported six secondary explosions — an indication of direct hits — plus 15 fires. Pilots also claimed damage or destruction to 50 barges, 6 bridges, 15 railroad cars and 15 trucks.

Navy pilots, attacking the Nam Dinh storage area 45 miles southwest of Haiphong, reported a string of fires and one secondary explosion.

Hanoi said two U.S. planes were shot down Friday, but there was no confirmation of this in Saigon. North Viet Nam also charged that U.S. planes staged 69 raids on North Vietnamese dikes and dams during July and said raids were continuing this month. U.S. officials disclaim knowledge of such attacks.

In South Viet Nam, American pilots flew 433 sorties and claimed destruction of 655 huts and 52 sampans. South Vietnamese pilots got in 293 sorties, the spokesman said.

For the fourth time this week, Guam-based B52s today hammered at Viet Cong strongholds in Tay Ninh Province facing the Cambodian border. The targets were 55 and 65 miles northwest of Saigon.

In one of the few ground actions involving Americans, U.S. Marines reported killing 11 Viet Cong Friday night in the Cam Lo River valley. Marine casualties were termed light.

province. He said about 90 per cent of all buildings in the city of Erzurum, with a population of 55,000 were demolished, as were most of those in Hinis Township. The local hospital also was destroyed.

The casualty reports from the four stricken provinces — Erzurum, Mus, Bingol and Bitlis — rose as the Turkish government with the help of the U.S. Air Force mounted a massive emergency aid and rescue operation.

The Turkish 3rd Army based in the city of Erzurum, largest urban center in the disaster area, sent troops and trucks into the surrounding mountainous countryside to reach residents of ruined villages.

The U.S. Air Force sent one plane load of doctors and medical supplies into the stricken area from Ankara and two others from Adana and alerted two more plane loads to follow.

The Americans rushed in 7,000 pounds of medical supplies and stood ready to fly in more.

The quakes began at 2:30 p.m. local time Friday. The newspaper Milliyet reported it was very strong for 20 seconds and was felt in Armenia and the neighboring Soviet Union.

The Erzurum weather bureau said the earth tremors lasted five minutes.

The Soviet news agency listed the intensity of the quake as 9 on the 12-point Soviet scale, equal to 7.5 on the 10-point Richter scale used in the West.

Aussies Hunt Fleeing Reds

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Australian infantrymen hunted remnants of a North Vietnamese battalion 40 miles southeast of Saigon today after battering the Communists with artillery fire and killing at least 227 of them.

Gen. William C. Westmoreland, U.S. commander in Viet Nam, called the Aussies' action a "significant victory."

Over North Viet Nam, U.S. pilots pounded oil depots in the southern panhandle Friday and left the area exploding in flames, the U.S. military command said.

Elsewhere, the ground war was relatively quiet. U.S. troops reported little or no contact.

At coastal Qui Nhon 280 miles southeast of Saigon, 800 fresh troops of the U.S. 1st Air Cavalry Division came ashore today, raising the total of American manpower in South Viet Nam to 297,000 men. The new troops moved immediately to the division's central highland headquarters at An Khe.

Westmoreland sent a congratulatory message to the Aussies for their battle of Thursday night when they hurled back a human-wave attack by perhaps as many as 1,000 Hanoi regulars.

A U.S. spokesman said American fliers flew 113 missions over the Communist north Friday were limited to the Haiphong area and the southern panhandle by bad weather.

He said the U.S. pilots struck eight oil dumps and reported six secondary explosions — an indication of direct hits — plus 15 fires. Pilots also claimed damage or destruction to 50 barges, 6 bridges, 15 railroad cars and 15 trucks.

Navy pilots, attacking the Nam Dinh storage area 45 miles southwest of Haiphong, reported a string of fires and one secondary explosion.

Hanoi said two U.S. planes were shot down Friday, but there was no confirmation of this in Saigon. North Viet Nam also charged that U.S. planes staged 69 raids on North Vietnamese dikes and dams during July and said raids were continuing this month. U.S. officials disclaim knowledge of such attacks.

In South Viet Nam, American pilots flew 433 sorties and claimed destruction of 655 huts and 52 sampans. South Vietnamese pilots got in 293 sorties, the spokesman said.

For the fourth time this week, Guam-based B52s today hammered at Viet Cong strongholds in Tay Ninh Province facing the Cambodian border. The targets were 55 and 65 miles northwest of Saigon.

In one of the few ground actions involving Americans, U.S. Marines reported killing 11 Viet Cong Friday night in the Cam Lo River valley. Marine casualties were termed light.
